

Dear Diary,

I just received a letter in the mail that I was conscripted for the war. A lot of people considered myself a pacifist. I don't want to go to war because I believe that violence is not the answer and should not be used for hurting someone. I also believed that violence doesn't solve any conflicts between people or even countries and should be resolved in a peaceful manner. I don't see eye to eye on the concept of war because it involves invading other countries and killing people for survival. The topic of war is heavily opposed when a person is a pacifist, but for some people they agree with war, as long as in the future there would be peace. I consider myself religious so killing or harming someone goes against the rules of my religion and won't be tolerated. I don't have the willpower to take someone's life and instead I show compassion and support to someone.

The conscription says that I have to enroll in the army but I have a lot of reasons and evidence to not go to war. The first thing is that I don't want to serve my country because this is the wrong way to solve any conflicts. My entire life I've been a catholic person that follows whatever god says and does. As catholic we could never kill a person because it goes against God's rules. The other reason that I won't follow the conscription is that It's going to affect my physical and mental health. Currently my body is in good shape and I don't have any fatal diseases. If I go to war I would get sick and injured or even worse die and I can't stand my family to grief over my dead body. My family is very old and I work various odd jobs to support them. If I was gone, who would be supporting them ? and who would take care of them ?. I won't see them in the last moments of my life because I'm sure that I would die on the battlefield.

Yours Sincerely,

Tanara

Dear Dairy,

Day 2

I just wrote this letter after they sended the conscription letter from yesterday, I'm giving this letter to give more of an idea about why I should not join the army,

Hopefully this is enough evidence to share with people who are in charge of this. I'm praying that they let me off the hook and I won't be serving my country overseas anytime soon. I would rather go to jail and sit in a cell than fighting for a country that took our culture and land. I want to go to heaven and killing someone would diminish that chance to get to the promised land.

The main reason that I won't obey what the conscription says is that It would affect me, my family and other innocent victims that have been forced to go to war. Other families would be torn apart and then every country that is involved in this war will get economic loss and there will be less jobs. I consider myself a pacifist which means that I won't tolerate violence and I want to dissolve any problems in a calm way . As I write this diary for someone to look at, you've been wondering why I am very loyal and religious to my religion. Well the reason is that I want to live my life as a humble and honest man and being religious helps me to guide me in the right way of living life. I also want to live for a very long time and impact other lives.

I hope that I won't get enrolled and I hope that God will answer my prayers. God almighty please save the souls of the people who will be participating in the war, save them God speed.

With Peace,
John State
